AV Box, Incorporated, was a short lived 'A'dult 'V'ideo publisher, which began releasing DVDs in 2004 and ceased in mid-2005. They then returned to publishing, very briefly, the next year (2006) under the assumed name of "Fairy Corporation", with no reference to their website address or old name anywhere on the new products. No explanation could be located to explain the reason why the business paused operations and then began publishing under a new name.

All AV Box & Fairy Corporation releases are Region Free DVDs, have 13-digit barcodes on the cover for the Taiwanese market, and feature both English and Chinese subtitles. These titles were allegedly licensed for release in both the U.S.A. and Taiwan. The lack of Chinese text on the covers, and covers being single-sided, does suggest that a different cover was likely used for copies offered for sale in Taiwan, though this aspect has never been confirmed.

When hunting for factory sealed copies of any of these titles, a point of note is that these DVDs all were packaged with the disc in a soft sleeve within the case.
