Short lived label of defunct adult video publisher J-Xross, which was a subsidiary of distributor [Oix] Optical Xtreme Corporation.

These DVD releases notoriously have reversible cover art featuring Japanese descriptions on one side and English on the other. For unknown reasoning, it's uncommon to find factory sealed copies of these with the English side cover art showing. Further, the publisher never assigned barcode numbers to any of their anime releases, thus limiting their own market distribution viability to web stores, catalogs, and the few specialty stores which didn't require barcode'd products. These two specific factors have created a potential for these DVDs to easily be mistaken for bootleg releases when encountered.

When hunting for factory sealed copies of any of these titles, additional points of note are that some of these DVDs were packaged with the disc mounted on the case spindle, as is normal, while others were packaged with the disc in a soft disc sleeve within the case. Also reported that the publisher inconsistently used both clear and black keepcases for the same release, thus creating a total of three variable potentials for all releases in this publisher's anime catalog.
